POETRY.

From the London Monthly Magazine.
THE SISTERS OF SCIO.

Weep'st thou for Greece, my sister, say?
And weep'st thou for her glory o'er?
And must thy lyre's once happy lay
Breathe forth a happy strain no more?

Weep not for Greece! she is not dead,
Our brothers count them of the free;
They point for glory's hallowed bed,
Or pan; for glory's liberty!

And is it so!—and wilt thou weep,
And dost thou deem thy brother slave?
His mind—his soul—like a sleep
Unworthy of the name of brave?

Strike high thy lyre! and give the wind
A lay like it—'till wild and free!
Even as must never be behind,
To urge our land to liberty.

Look round! the sky and sun are bright,
And music swells in every breeze;
There's merry carols from the height,
And freedom's chanted from the trees—

* * * * *

Look round! a Spirit passes by!
I hear his voice in thunder borne;
And darkness veils the summer sky,
And dawns the rosy beams of morn!

He cries—'Awake! old Greece, awake!
The Genius of thy children calls!
For Fame, for Freedom's hallowed sake,
Rise and defend your helpless walls!'

So rise! our hearths' unguarded glow
Provokes barbarian's ruthless hand—
Arise! and strike th' intruder low,
And guard our ocean-gridded land!

* It is but justice to a very talented artist, to state that the above verses were suggested by a drawing which, I think, appeared in one of the Annals of 1833, bearing the name of "The Sisters of Scio." It appeared to me that the feeling and beauty of the painter were but feebly illustrated in the tale appended to the engraving. Whether I may have succeeded in catching somewhat of that feeling, it is not, of course, for me to determine.

THE WALTHAM BLACKS.

"The Waltham Blacks" was the name of a gang of robbers and deer-stealers, broken up, part of whom were killed in the struggle, and the rest executed about a century ago. An eye-witness thus writes:—

"You must have heard of the Waltham Blacks—a set of whimsical, merry fellows, who are so mad as to run the greatest hazards for a haunch of venison, or spending a merry evening. For my part, I took the stories of them for fables, until experience taught me by the following adventure. My horse being lamed with a stone in his foot, I was under the necessity of putting up at a small ale-house with a stable and yard behind it. The man received me very civilly, but when I inquired if he could accommodate me all night, he answered that he had no room. I requested him to put something to my horse's foot, and I would sit up all night. He was silent. The good wife was more rude, and insisted upon her husband bringing my horse out instantly—but putting a crown into her hand, and promising another in the morning, she became more accommodating. She then told me, that there was a small bed up stairs, upon which she would lay a pair of clean sheets, and added, that she supposed I was more of a gentleman than to take notice of what I saw passing there. This created in me much uneasiness, and I concluded that I had fallen into a den of highwaymen—that I should not only be robbed, but have my throat cut—necessity, however, constrained me to submit. It was dark, and I heard three or four men dismount from their horses, lead them into the yard, and as they were coming into the room, I heard the landlord say, 'Indeed, brother, you need not be uneasy—I am positive the gentleman is a man of honor.' Another said, 'What good could our death do to a stranger? The gentleman will be happy in our company—hang fear! I'll lead the way.' So said, and so done; in came five so effectually disguised, that unless I were to see them in the same disguise, I should not be able to distinguish any one of them. Down they sat—and their captain accosted me with great civility, and requested me to honor them with my company at supper. Supposing that my landlord would not permit either a robbery or a murder in his house, I gradually became composed. About ten, I heard the noise of a number of horses arriving, and the feet of men stamping in an upper room. In a little while, the landlord came to inform me that supper was upon the table. Upon this we all went up stairs—and the captain, with a ridiculous kind of ceremony, introduced me to a man more disguised than the rest, sitting at the head of the table, at the same time adding, that he hoped I would have no objections to pay my respects to Prince Oroonoko, king of the Blacks. Then I began to perceive what kind of persons they were, and was astonished that the hurry and agitation I was in had prevented me from discovering it sooner.

The supper consisted of eighteen dishes of venison in various shapes, roasted, boiled, with broth, hashed collops, pasties, umble pies, and a large haunch in the centre larded. The table was set at was large, and twenty-one sat down to supper. Each had a bottle of claret, and the man and woman of the house sat at the lower end of the table. A few of them had good musical voices, and the evening was spent with as great jollity as by the rakes at King's Arms, or the city apprentices at Sadler's Wells. About two, the company broke up, all of them assuring me, that upon any Thursday evening they should be happy to see me at supper. They also did me the honor to inform me of the rules by which their society was regulated. The Black Prince informed me, that their government was monarchical, and that, when they went upon any expedition, he had an absolute command.—But in time of peace, and at table, he condescended to live familiarly with his subjects as friends. That no person was admitted into their association until he was twice drunk, that they might be perfectly acquainted with his temper. When it was agreed that a brother was to be admitted, he was required to provide himself with a good horse, a brace of pistols, and a gun to lie on the saddle-bow. Then he is sworn upon the horns over the chimney, and, having a new name conferred upon him, he is entered upon the roll, and constituted a member. In the morning, I presented my landlady with a second crown, and prosecuted my journey with no small degree of amazement."—English paper.

THE MORNING POST.

MONDAY, MARCH 31, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.

No. XCIX.

Washington, March 26, 1834.—For a day or two, much has been said about the failure of the Maryland Bank; and ardent hopes have been cherished by "all the talents and all the patriots," that the Union Bank of Baltimore would fail also. It would have furnished an excellent argument for the opposition. But in this "consummation devoutly to be wished," they are doomed to be disappointed. What ever may have taken place at Baltimore on the subject, you will get it sooner from that city than you would via Washington. So I shall dismiss the subject.

I have noticed a few of our Northerners here within the last fortnight; but most of them have returned. It is dull amusement here for a man of business, and more especially if he happens to have no acquaintance in the city. During the session hours he can amuse himself well enough for a few days; but the mornings and evenings fasten like a vampire upon his patience. Were it not for the ladies' presence, I do not think the question of the President's adjourning Congress, would ever come up; they would be glad enough to adjourn as early as May, if the ladies should withhold the light of their heavenly countenances in the Senate and House only for one long week.

But to the orders of the day. In the House, Mr Burgess concluded his speech, which he has been giving by small instalments for a week past. It was on Mr Mardis' Resolutions relating to the Deposites. The honorable member from Rhode Island is always interesting, and always witty, and sometimes not a little cynical: but that's his way. Nevertheless everybody likes to hear him.

In the Senate, Mr Brown made a short speech. Mr Preston offered a memorial from the young men of Philadelphia; and threw one of his rhetorical bombshells into the Executive mansion, which produced a prodigious burst of eloquence.

Mr Forsyth answered his fire in a very happy and forcible manner. Mr Preston complained, that the President had not sent in the nominations of his Cabinet to the Senate; and that the four and a half per cents had not been paid off by the Government with their overflowing treasury. Mr Forsyth read the Constitution to him, which allowed the Executive to make appointments during the recess of Congress, leaving it at his discretion at what time during the session the nominations should be submitted to the Senate. As to the four and a half per cents, he thought there was quite business enough before Congress and the Executive at this time, without meddling with this subject, in this state of "pressure." In alluding to the young men's memorial of Philadelphia, he said that the political sentiments of the city had always been adverse to that of the State for the last forty years; and had been during that time opposed to all administrations; and that the young gentlemen, if they wished to be fashionable, and desired to be in favor with the ladies, and have a passport to good society, they would of course accord in opinion with the dominant party in the city. Why the ladies, said he, (alluding to Fanny Kemble's toast, I suppose) all go for the restoration of the deposits! But the young men! said he, apostrophizing this venerable class of exclusive patriots—the young men have had their National Convention, and nominated the most popular man of their choice for the Presidency; but they were overshadowed at the ballot-box! Hereupon Mr Clay looked as red as Peter Force's National Calendar, bound in sheep! Did he blush for the young men, or himself? This is a grave question; and I shall leave the solution to his—I was going to say, conscience—but that is neither here nor there.

Mr Preston had alluded to the troops marching to South Carolina, and seemed to prefer a pestilence. Mr Forsyth's reply to it was very happy. He said the reason that people were not shocked at the sight was, that they approved, and applauded it: but a pestilence he thought far more appalling than any other evil that had visited the country; and he drew a touching picture of his passing through Philadelphia and New York when they were afflicted with this visitation, and meeting no human being, and seeing no living thing; and that he fled, startled at the sound of his own footsteps, through the cities of desolation and the dead. Mr Clay looked as though he was trying to recollect whether the Senator from Georgia had any allusion to his patriotic imprecation of "war, pestilence and famine;" and the audience, as if by one impulse, turning to the patriotic imprecator, seemed to be thinking, whether or no they had not some dim recollection of this same high minded, generous, and patriotic imprecation.

Mr Wright made an able speech on one of Mr Clay's resolutions, after this subject was called up, with the expectation it would be disposed of to-day. His argument against the passage of the resolution was, that it accused the President of high crimes and misdemeanors; and that the accusation should come from the other House, and this should sit in judgment; that the effect of passing the resolution would be to condemn him unheard, and without trial.

The conclusion to the speech, in which he alluded to the life and services of the President, was the most thrilling appeal to the best and noblest feelings of the human heart, that I have ever heard on the floor of the Senate.

Had the vote been taken after this speech, I doubt whether the opposition, in presence of the large and excited audience, would have dared to pass this resolution. Mr Clay moved an adjournment, giving notice that he should speak to-morrow; and afterwards the Senate went into secret session. As matters now stand, it is very doubtful whether the opposition are so much in love with Mr Clay, as to dare to pass this false, scandalous, and pestilent resolution. They must put their names to the deed; and I doubt very much whether at last, notwithstanding all their malice and envy, they will desire to leave a record, that will most surely hereafter "witness against them to damnation."

REIS EFFENDI.

The President and Directors of the Union Bank of Maryland have denied, over their signatures, the statement of Mr Clay in regard to the Treasury drafts, which he said had been furnished by the Secretary of the Treasury to that institution, and solemnly declare that there is no foundation whatever for the statement.

Petitions are in circulation relative to granting licences, which people had better examine carefully before they affix their signatures to them. The object of the petition has been frequently misrepresented for the purpose of obtaining names, as we have been informed.

Two Austrian frigates arrived at New York on Friday, bringing 234 Polish emigrants.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

Paris papers to the 15th February, containing London dates to the 11th, have been received at New York, by the packet ship Rhone, from Havre, 17th Feb. The advices from Spain are no later than before received.

England.—The London papers are yet discussing the subject of what they term "The Irish Row," kicked up in the House of Commons by Mr O'Connell. The last despatches from the Court of St Petersburg give such positive assurance of a continuance of peace, that a reduction of the army is talked of in the higher circles. It is believed, however, that this measure will not take place till after the close of the Congress. General Sir Colin Campbell has been appointed to the Staff of the British forces in North America.

Portsmouth, Feb. 9.—Two hundred and twelve Polish refugees on board ship in this harbor, bound to America, have refused to proceed on the voyage, and took violent possession of the ship.

Scotland.—The London Courier states that an insurrection had broken out among the workmen of the extensive calico printing establishments in the neighborhood of Glasgow. Troops had been marched from Edinburgh, to protect the establishments.

Paris.—Gen. Lafayette had been severely and alarmingly ill—but was better on the 12th Feb.

The Constitutionnel of the 14th of Feb., states that on the preceding day, the Chamber of Deputies had voted the law for liquidating the old civil list.

Italy.—Several arrests had taken place at Rome, but they are merely precautionary—to guard against troubles during the Carnival.

HAVRE MARKETS, Feb. 15. Ashes.—The market has been flat, and we have only to notice sales of 95 bbls N. Y. pots, Havre assortment, at 35f Ko. duty paid, and 35 bbls pearls, first sort, at 41.

Beeswax.—32 bbls and 63 bags have been imported from New York, per Francois I.; choice parcels would readily command our highest quotations.

Coffee.—We have an unlimited inquiry for Coffee. Cottons have been in limited demand since our last.

Rice.—New Charleston is worth from 23f to 25f for good ord., to fine, and 20f 50 for ord. The sales since our last have consisted of 764 trs and half tierces, at 22f to 25f, duty paid.

Still Later from Portugal.—Capt. Taylor, of the Maria Theresa, arrived here yesterday from St. Ubes 20th Feb. He reports that the evening before he sailed an express arrived from Lisbon, with an account of a battle between the two brothers, in which Miguel was defeated with great loss. This caused great rejoicing and a general illumination at St. Ubes. Fears had been apprehended of an attack on St. Ubes for some time, but at the departure of the Maria Theresa, they had entirely subsided.

From the Bahamas.—We have received files of the Royal Gazette of Nassau, N. P. to the 12th inst., inclusive, but their contents are not important. The cholera is said to have reappeared in St Domingo.—N. Y. Com.

The Editor of the Transcript is astonished that we should accuse him of imputing dishonorable conduct to Commodore Elliot: he says—"We impute nothing to Capt. Elliot."—In his paper of the 27th instant is the following:—"If he (Commodore Elliot) should persist in the attempt in opposition to the wishes of the Navy Department, the consequences may be serious."—Journal.

"Our neighbor is not quite up to the matter. We will tell him a secret. If President Jackson, Secretary Woodbury, and the Navy Commissioners, could be brought into collision, it might happen that there would ensue a vacancy in the Navy Board, and it might happen that Commodore Elliot might drop into the gap and fill it up as snug as a ship in dry dock."

It was said on 'Change to-day, that Com. Elliot is hostile to Mr Secretary Woodbury, and is desirous that he should be reformed out, to make room for Mr Poinsett. Can this be true? What are Mr Poinsett's (?) claims, and what has Mr Woodbury done to lose a popularity which has justly pronounced him to be the most able, efficient, and impartial Secretary, that ever conducted the affairs of the Navy Department?

If the above be not an imputation, cast by its author upon the honor of the Commodore, we are unable to comprehend the meaning of the language used.

Mr Walter says—"We shall not ask the editor of that paper, [the Post] how to conduct our journal, nor consult him when to engage in political controversy, or when in, what weapons to wield, or whom to select as an antagonist. We stand on our personal right of opinion and the freedom of our press."

This declaration of editorial and personal independence, (a la Abrahamides), as far as it relates to us, is altogether gratuitous. We never affected the power, nor expressed a desire to influence the editor of the Transcript upon any subject—he belongs to that class who are too "wise in their own conceit," to take counsel of others. As to what his political or personal opinions may be, or in what manner he may express them, we assure him that we are perfectly indifferent.

The passage of the law abolishing Imprisonment for Debt, will be hailed by every liberal minded man as one of the most beneficial and important acts ever adopted by our Legislature. To Mr ROBINSON, of Marblehead, the author of the Bill, and its able and indefatigable supporter, is the community greatly indebted, and also to those gentlemen who co-operated with him. Let the friends of humanity, to whose labors the people owe this melioration of a cruel code of laws, be forever distinguished from those who opposed them in their philanthropic efforts. The main question upon the passage of the Bill was decided in the Senate as follows:—

Yeas—Hooper, Willard, Hedge, Marston, Foster, Hawes, Merrill, Newton, Wright, Kimball, Nichols, Whitmarsh, Barton, Williams, Newhall, Strong, Hale, Cotton, Lee, Stevens, Bailey, Boise, Austin, Cutler, French, Brownell, Blake, Everett, Adan, Webb, Barstow, Pickman.—32.

Nays—SHATTUCK, RUSSELL, HUDSON WELLS.—4.

The State Loan.—The Loan of $729,354 44 has been taken by John Moss, Esq. of this city. Another offer was made for it from an eminent European house—but although above par, not being as favorable as that of Mr Moss, was rejected. The "gloom is passing away" and the improvements of Pennsylvania will not be arrested.—Phil. Sent.

POLICE COURT.

[Saturday.]

Daniel Prinney, after laying in jail two days, for refusing to be sworn after he had entered a complaint, charging two women with being common drunkards, was again brought into court. The tender and conciliatory discipline of the jail had completely subdued his stubborn heart, and the only objection that could be made to his testimony was that it was rather too zealous and precipitate—he seemed to be anxious to make up for his past intractability, by his brisk and uncalculating answers to the questions propounded to him by the court. He was equally patriotic, and bravely said—"I'll only give an American oath;" but it may be doubted whether the reason he gave for supposing the defendants to be drunk, is entirely "American." "They must be very drunk to curse and swear at the likes of me," said Daniel. This rather goes beyond the worthy witness who defined drunkenness to be an insensibility to "gentle admonition." When questioned by the court, if the complaint did not grow out of a quarrel, he replied "Te be sure, ye're honor, I shouldn't have complained never a bit, if they hadn't bin after saying I'd be staling some potatoes." This singular testimony was neither confirmed nor contradicted, and the defendants escaped conviction as drunkards, and Prinney an indictment for perjury. This was not the end of his troubles, however; for he was called upon to answer, for absconding from the court on Thursday last, after being summoned as a witness. His defence shows that he had pretty clearly foreseen the result of his complaint:—"After I'd bin complaining to ye'r honor's court, when I was taking myself home, I'd be thinking I'd be sorry for it, before I got through with the business; but as it was not out of any activity I did it, I jist met one of the husbands in the store, and tould him he needn't come to court, but he insisted on it." As Prinney sinned in this last matter, through fear, rather than malice, he was fined $1 and costs. So that he had to lay in jail two days and two nights, and pay $3 25, for calling, "cursing and swearing," getting drunk—enough indeed to make him "sorry for it." He left the court with a solemn avowal never to be caught in such a scrape again.

Lucretia , a saucy, but sweet pretty girl, only thirteen years of age, was brought up on complaint of her mother. She was arrested at the house of Mrs. Whitney, in Butolph street, where Walton, the highwayman, quartered himself. The old hag, first said she knew nothing about the girl, but upon searching the room, she was found stowed away in a closet, behind a fire screen. She had been decoyed from home by a fellow named Brown, who paid her board at a notorious house in George street. On one occasion, her father attempted to bring her home, but she fought him so desperately, that he was glad to retreat, though at the expense of a black eye. Sentenced to the House of Reformation.

"Antipathy," probably.

A counterfeiter, by the name of James Springer, who has for a long time escaped being arrested, was taken on Saturday week, in Paterson, (N. J.) by a police officer from New York. He had escaped from the rendezvous of a gang of villains in Hudson street, N. Y., a few days, where he evaded the officer by dropping his pocket-book, and making off while the latter was endeavoring to obtain possession of it. He has been brought to New York, and confined at Bellevue. A few years ago, says the Standard, he secreted a pallet of counterfeit money in the house of a hatter, of irreproachable character, in Chatham street, and then accused him of being a counterfeiter; the gentleman narrowly escaped conviction on the charge.

Sagacious.—The Bank men are persuading themselves that the removal of the deposits caused the failure of the Bank of Maryland! Did it not also cause the failure of the Eagle Bank of New Haven—and the Hillsboro' Bank of New Hampshire, about which Mr Senator Bell can give some information?

The collar editor of the Boston Post, like his namesake here, seems to have a particular antipathy to the working people. One of his articles says the failures at Boston are a mere humbug—only a shoemaker here and a watchmaker there, &c. &c.—N. Y. Star.

O, King of Arrarat, and Judge of Israel, thou utterest that in which there is no truth.

Horrible.—A broker complained on Saturday last that he had not passed so dull a week for a year as the last one. No premiums offered at all—the rascally banks did all the business at the beggarly rate of six per centum.

Mr Webster says in the Senate, "take care of the rich, and the rich will take care of the poor." This is the motto of the Bank, then—take care of us, and we will take care of the people—but the people will take care of themselves and the Bank too.

Fire.—A Fire broke out yesterday morning about 2 o'clock, in a shed adjoining the building No 111 Milk Street, directly in the rear of the Custom House. The shed and out houses were entirely consumed—with considerable damage to the building.

The Fire Warrior, by J. S. Jones, is announced for this evening, at the Warren.—No trouble, time, or expense have been spared to render it one of the most effective dramas ever produced. The scenery, dresses, and stage arrangements are on a magnificent scale. One moving scene, representing the march of the American army, and an Indian camp in flames, at the same time, is extremely splendid and imposing. Mr Blake, formerly a favorite at this theatre, will appear on this occasion, as a "Screamer."

Tremont Theatre.—The Kembles, after a necessary respite of three nights, appear again this evening, in "Isabella."

CONGRESS.

Wednesday, March 26.—In the Senate, Mr. Wright resumed and concluded his remarks upon the special order of the day, the report of the Committee on Finance, and Mr. Clay's resolutions upon the removal of the deposits. Mr. Clay then obtained the floor, and moved an adjournment, but gave way to Mr. Poinsett, upon whose motion the Senate proceeded to Executive business; and after some time spent therein, adjourned.

In the House, Mr. Burgess resumed and concluded his remarks upon Mr. Mardis' resolution, and Mr. Chilton Allen obtained the floor. At one o'clock the House proceeded to the consideration of the resolutions reported from the Committee of Ways and Means, together with the amendment submitted by Mr. Wilde, declaring that the reasons of the Secretary of the Treasury for the removal of the deposits are unsatisfactory and insufficient. Mr. Schley addressed the House—when he had concluded, Mr. Ellsworth obtained the floor, and the House adjourned.

In Senate, on Thursday, Mr. Webster gave notice that he should call up his Bank bill on the 21st of April instead of the 1st of May, as before announced. Mr. Clay addressed the Senate upon the deposit question up to the adjournment without concluding.

In the House, Mr. Chilton Allen spoke on Mr. Mardis' resolution, and Mr. Ellsworth upon the report of the Committee of Ways and Means. Mr. Choate obtained the floor for Friday, upon the latter question.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Saturday, March 26.—In the Senate, Bills passed to be engrossed—to incorporate the First Methodist Episcopal Society in Newburyport—for the collection of Bonds, &c. due the Commonwealth. The resolves on the petition of David Thatcher and of Joseph Hay, and another, were passed. The bill concerning Usury was referred to the next General Court. Leave to withdraw was granted on the petition of J. C. Alvord.

In the House, the amendments by the senate to the bill to abolish imprisonment for debt were concurred in.

Passed to be enacted—bills to incorporate the Female Society of Boston and vicinity for promoting Christianity among the Jews—concerning leaseholders for long terms—declaring inhabitants of counties to be competent witnesses in certain cases—in addition to an act imposing a duty on sales at auction. On motion of Mr Darling of Marblehead, the bill concerning Jail limits was taken up, read a third time, amended, and on motion of Mr McQuesten of Haverhill, was indefinitely postponed. Mr Richardson of Boston, presented a petition of Wm. Wright and others for corporate powers—committed. The bill limiting the powers of County Commissioners and providing for a settlement of their accounts was rejected.

Distressing Accident.—Yesterday forenoon, Mr Joel Kimball, butcher, of Danvers, was instantly killed, in this town, by his waggon passing over his head. We learn that his horse took fright, and in jumping from his seat his feet became entangled, which precipitated him between the axle trees, and the wheels went directly over his head.—Salem Obser. of Sat.

Fatal Accident.—On Friday last, while Mr. Josiah Brown, of this town, a deaf and dumb man, was at work on some rocks, he fell and one of the rocks rolled upon him, crushing him in a very shocking manner. He died on Wednesday last. Gloucester Telegraph.

Letters from Harrisburg, dated the 21st inst., state that business was pretty brisk on the canal. Upwards of one hundred loaded boats had passed through the locks there since the opening of the navigation; and the season begins to wear its usual busy and pleasing aspect.

Communication with the West.—The Rail Road over the Alleghany mountains is now in operation, so that between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh there is no obstruction in the transportation of goods.

Fire.—On Friday afternoon last, the carpenter's shop of Mr Russell Packard of this town, and also his barn, was totally destroyed, with their contents by fire.—Pittsfield Sun.

The Legislature of Louisiana adjourned on the 10th instant.

Mrs Austin is singing in Mobile.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Mr. Editor—Having read in the Morning Post, of 26th March, an account of the destruction, by fire, of the Ropewalk in East Cambridge, stating loss in cordage and stock $1200, and no insurance, &c. With the strictest regard to truth I say that said loss did not amount to one tenth part of the above sum; also, that during my partnership, a short time previously to Mr. Webster's purchasing it. The fire is universally admitted to have been the work of an incendiary, and as insinuations injurious to my character, in regard to this affair, have gone forth, I earnestly wish that an early investigation may take place when facts and circumstances of the late Dr Kendall, all of Weston. In West Cambridge, Jacob N. Wate, of Hallowell, Me., to Elizabeth W. daughter of the late Richard Richardson, Esq. of Ashby.
